Pat was born in upstate New York and began painting at the age of five. By the time she was 17, she held her first solo art show. She studied at the California College of Arts and Crafts in Oakland and at San Francisco's Academy of Art University, where she earned a B.F.A. After working as a freelance designer and illustrator for several years, she gravitated toward abstract art, which allowed her the freedom to express herself visually without constraints.

Pat draws inspiration from some of the greatest abstract artists, including Richard Diebenkorn and Wayne Thiebaud, particularly admiring their use of color, design, and geometric shapes. Her work has been exhibited in national and international exhibitions and is collected throughout the United States and abroad.
