Pat was born in upstate New York and began painting at the age of five. By the time she was 17, she held her first solo art show. She studied at the California College of Arts and Crafts in Oakland and at San Francisco's Academy of Art University, where she earned a B.F.A. After working as a freelance designer and illustrator for several years, she gravitated toward abstract art, which allowed her the freedom to express herself visually without constraints.

Pat draws inspiration from some of the greatest abstract artists, including Richard Diebenkorn and Wayne Thiebaud, particularly admiring their use of color, design, and geometric shapes. Her work has been exhibited in national and international exhibitions and is collected throughout the United States and abroad.

The Drawing Board

Each month a different member of the CWA Board of Directors has the opportunity to write an art-related article for our members.

Redpointing a Painting by Jessica de Jesus

There is nothing like getting a painting right the first time around, but we all know that's just not how it goes. (This is especially true if I plan to enter a painting into a show when stakes are high and brushstrokes become tight!) If you're like me, you have stacks upon stacks of "failed" paintings just waiting to be gessoed over.

In rock climbing, "redpoint" means successfully climbing a route after multiple attempts, with no falls or rests on the rope. A good friend of mine, and fellow CWA member, often tells me how I'm "so good at redpointing a painting." This means that I can just keep painting the same thing over and over again until I feel like I'm happy with the result to call it "done." I couldn't help but laugh at the analogy, but she's right! Redpointing a painting is definitely part of my process. I have attempted some studio paintings three, maybe four times before I've landed on "the one."

At first glance, repeating a painting might feel redundant — or even like a step backward. Shouldn't every artwork be a fresh, new challenge? But for me, painting the same subject more than once is one of the ways I learn: I can test colors, techniques, and even mediums — oftentimes, I'll try a painting in watercolor and then in gouache! I also find that I'm able to refine my technique with practice, allowing me to apply paint more quickly and with confidence because I know exactly what I want to do and when the time is right, especially with watercolor. More importantly, with each attempt, I deepen my understanding of what's important and what details I can leave out.

To the right is a tester piece and my final "redpoint" for Early Start — Garnet Lake, which was accepted into the 55th International Exhibition earlier this year, along with another example of an ocean bluff piece below.

Alameda County Fair Award Winners

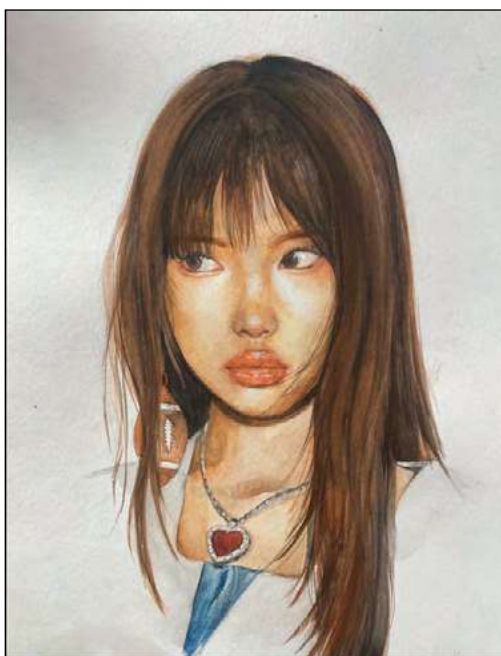

ALAMEDA
COUNTY
FAIRGROUNDS
PLEASANTON

COUNTY FAIR
JUNE 13-JULY 6
PLEASANTON

You know that it's summertime when the Alameda County Fair comes around. The CWA sponsors three $50 prizes for students in three categories: Grades 6-8, Grades 9-10, and Grades 11-12, along with two honorable mentions. Submissions were received earlier this month, and the judging process was conducted online by the CWA Community Outreach team. This allows the Alameda County Fair to announce the winners when it opens. Be sure to visit the fair to see some of the incredible artwork created by students from Alameda County, which will be displayed in Building R.

The Winners are:

Grades 6–8th

Portrait by Vanessa Chang

The judges found this to be a very precocious portrait. The turn of the cheek and the lips, nose, and eyes are remarkable for a 6th–8th grader.

Grades 9–10th

Still Life by Bella Guan

The textures on the vase and table, plus the playful scattering of paint tubes, are what caught the judges' eye. The loose pen and ink work and rendering of the bust decided the choice. Well done, Bella.

Grades 11–12th

Ocean Drive by Sophia Macedo

The cropping of the beach, water, palm tree, and van evoked a trip to the ocean and left the judges excited and wanting more.

Honorable Mention:

Cathedral by Valerie Ma

Flower by Valerie Ma

Thomas Schaller

Design and the Power of Imagination

3-Day Online Workshop

June 16–18, 2025

All Levels (some experience helpful)

CWA Members $350 Non-Members $410

Thomas W. Schaller, AWS, NWS, TWSA, ASAI, is an award-winning artist, architect, and author based in New York City. As a renowned architectural artist, he has received a Graham Foundation Grant and is a two-time recipient of the Hugh Ferriss Memorial Prize. He has authored three books, including the best-selling and AIA award-winning Architecture in Watercolor, The Art of Architectural Drawing, and Thomas W. Schaller, Architect of Light: Watercolor Paintings by a Master.

He believes that the reason we paint is far more important than what or how we paint. His work explores contrasts between light and dark, vertical and horizontal, warm and cool, as well as the real and the imagined. He incorporates elements from the past, present, and future into his designs, allowing conflicting elements to find balance and resolution on the paper's surface in surprising and expressive ways.

For Schaller, painting is not just about the final product; it's about being fully present in the process. He learns by listening more closely to his creative voice. He invites others to join him on this journey—not to follow his narrative, but to help discover and develop their unique artistic voice.

Plein Air — Dublin Heritage Park and Museums

Saturday, June 14, 2025, 10:00 am–1:00 pm

Dublin Heritage Park and Museums is located at the intersection of Dublin Boulevard and Donlon Way in the Bay Area. This site has a rich history, dating back more than 200 years, when Dublin was a key stop on two stagecoach routes: one connecting the Bay Area to Stockton and the other linking Martinez to San Jose.

Today, Dublin Heritage Park and Museums encompasses a 10-acre area featuring historic buildings, lawns, a Pioneer Cemetery, and picnic areas. We will gather in front of Old St. Raymond Church at 10:00 AM and then reconvene there at 12:30 PM to share our paintings. We hope to see you there!

May General Meeting Demo Recap

by Lis MacDonald

This month, we experienced a bit of a roller coaster in getting our demo artist confirmed. Our original artist, Thomas W. Schaller, had a scheduling conflict, and Birgit O'Connor unfortunately came down with Covid just days before the meeting. Fortunately, our hero, Michael Reardon, came to the rescue!

Michael is a veteran, award-winning watercolor artist with more than 30 years of experience and an avid traveler. He photographs areas of interest and uses these images to create his sketches and paintings. His watercolors have been exhibited widely, including at the National Watercolor Society, the American Watercolor Society, Watercolor West, and the California Watercolor Association, where he holds signature member status.

During the meeting, Michael played a video from a workshop that outlined his process for painting the Pont de Notre Dame in Paris. The scene depicted a late afternoon view with live commentary. Most of Michael's paintings are in portrait mode, which enhances their visual impact. He begins with a value study that serves as his sole reference while painting.

Utilizing a limited palette, he started with orange and cobalt blue to create both warm and cool areas, gradually building up the values as he works down the paper. Areas in the background were painted wet into wet transitioning from cool to warmer colors. Painting around the center of interest, leaving it the lightest value (the sunlit area at the top of the bridge) darkening the colors as he moves toward the water. To finish, he added reflections to the water and applied a final glaze over it.

If you missed the meeting, the video is now available on YouTube. Click here, or copy and paste this link into your browser: <https://youtu.be/vQ-Ry1Po8NA>

She is a nationally award-winning artist, a juror, and an educator, holding Signature Membership in several water media societies. In the American Watercolor Society, her paintings have received notable recognition: Production won the Francis Nell Storer Memorial Award, Machine Head won the Bud & Gretchen Marble Award, and this year, Shapes Within received the Alden Bryan Memorial Medal. Earning her AWS Signature is truly an honor.
